

Have you found an injured or orphaned animal?

Call us at 828.898.2568 before you attempt to help injured wildlife, please!

Here are some quick tips:

- Use caution! Cover the animal using gloves and a towel and, if possible, place into a box or plastic crate.
- Keep the animal in a warm, dark, quiet place.
- Do not offer food or water as it can cause additional harm.
- If we are too far for you to drive, call us anyway. We can connect you with a local facility.

About the May Wildlife Rehabilitation Center

The May Wildlife Rehabilitation Center at Lees-McRae College is dedicated to earth stewardship through wildlife rehabilitation and education, hands-on training and scientific research. We annually rehabilitate more than 1,500 injured or orphaned native wildlife patients and educate more than 20,000 people in schools, festivals and on-site presentations with our non-releasable animal ambassadors.

Learn more at lmc.edu/wildlifecenter >>

May Wildlife Rehabilitation Center
at Lees-McRae College